Breaking Now: Teen Dies After Being Struck By Car

'Rosie's Girls' Camp Builds Self-Esteem

Last Update: 7/29 8:37 pm

It was lessons on welding and electric wiring today for the girls at the YWCA's "Rosie's Girls" camp.

The two-week camp is held at Woodward High School teaches the young women carpentry, auto repair, fire-fighting and other trades.

The camp is designed to help build self-esteem and confidence – and it keeps them busy during the summer.

"Where we live at they like to fight and stuff," said Shawn Graves, "so, it's better off for me to go to camp than stay home."

Janice Urbanik, of the Greater Cincinnati Workforce Network, explains the camp's mission.

"Expose girls to many non-traditional careers especially in the construction area, so we teach them carpentry, electric, plumbing, welding, but we also really expose the girls to push the boundaries in all forms of their life," said Urbanik.
